

Poseidon is the God of the Sea. He is Zeus's brother. The Greeks on both sides of the Aegean sea were seamen and Poseidon was very important to them. His wife is Amphitrite, a granddaughter of the Titan Ocean. He has an amazing palace under the sea, but he spends most of his time in Olympus, the main palace of the Gods. Always seen carrying his Trident (a three-pronged spear).

Poseidon gave the first horse to man. The reason for making the horse was because he wanted to make a present for Demeter. Because of this, he was honored even more, but still known for being the God of the Sea.

"Lord Poseidon, from you this pride is ours, the strong horses, the young horses, and also the rule of the deep."

He also had storm and calm under his control

"He commanded and the storm wind rose and the waves of the seas"

But when he drove in his golden car over the waters, the thunder of the waves sank into stillness, and peace followed his smooth-rolling wheels.
